

ASK THEM WHY?

Ask the men who are making imitations of COTTOLINE, the new vegetable shortening, why they give up and try to trade on the merits of COTTOLINE? Perhaps you can guess why.

ASK HIM WHY?

Ask the grocer who attempts substitution, why he tries to sell an imitation when people call for that pure, palatable and popular vegetable shortening, COTTOLINE? Perhaps you can guess.

ASK YOURSELF WHY?

Why should not YOU use COTTOLINE, instead of lard or any other compound, for all cooking purposes? It has the highest possible endorsement; from Physicians as to healthfulness; from Cooking Experts as to superiority; from housekeepers as to economy. Use COTTOLINE and stick to it.

A TRUE GHOST STORY

THE OLD WOMAN IN THE QUEER DRESS UNDER AN OAK TREE.

She Always Appeared to Announce an Approaching Death in the Family—She Was Probably a Servant Who Had Been Employed in the Family for Many Years.

"Every body laughs in these days at the old story of the Irish bun-bun," said a gentleman of national reputation lately as he chatted with a friend or two in the office of the Continental, "and I am not saying but that it was but a superstition after all, though there is a little thing connected with my family that is a strange coincidence, to call it even that."

"Once, when I was a boy, I woke up during the night weeping bitterly, and when my mother came to my bedside I told her that I had dreamed that a queerly dressed old woman had come to me under a large oak tree and had warned me that my brother Leonard, who was my senior by several years, was going to die very soon. I noticed then that instead of calming my fears my mother listened to me without saying a word, and presently I saw that she, too, was crying as hard as I was. I asked what was the matter, and though she put me off I did not forget the strange effect on her that my dream had produced."

"It could not have been a week after that that my brother came in one afternoon from school and said he was going to join a party of young people in a sleighing excursion to the next town. My mother was very unwilling for him to go and confounded to all sorts of nervous fears, very unlike her usual calm and self-reliant self, but my brother insisted and at last went off, followed by my mother's anxious eyes. Within three hours we received a telegram saying that he had been killed by the horses attached to the sleigh becoming frightened, and, running away near a railroad track had thrown my poor brother under the wheels of a train."

"When his mangled body came home, my mother met it, saying to her sister, who was visiting at our house for the day, 'I know it, Fanny. I have seen her the other night, and for a long time I wondered who the lady referred to could be. I was nearly grown when I again saw the old woman of my boyhood dream. I was about to graduate at our home university and was studying hard for the final examinations and was sitting up late one night reading over some questions in mental philosophy when I dropped off to sleep in my chair.'

"Then I dreamed of standing once more under a large oak tree, which was particularly marked about the bark by a ring about three feet above the ground. Here I was facing an old woman in a servant's dress of the thirteenth or fourteenth century. I should judge, and this old woman was telling me that I would see my father no more in life. I was a good deal worried over this dream, remembering my former one and its tragic sequence, but had ceased to think of it in the hurry and anxiety of the examination, when one day old Professor B. called to me as I was passing from one classroom to another and asked, 'H., isn't your father in Switzerland?'

"I replied that he was, for his health had failed so alarmingly for months past that he had been ordered abroad and had been rapidly getting well in the mountains of Switzerland. He had recently joined the English party in an expedition to Mont Blanc and had written in fine spirits regarding the trip. Professor B. said no more, but I came across in a few minutes a newspaper containing an account of an American who had been killed by falling down a crevasse in the Swiss Alps."

"No particulars were known or given by the paper, but I knew—oh, yes, I knew—that the American was my father, and so it proved. I told my widowed mother of the strange coincidence of my second dream, and she replied that the warning would never fail, that it had gone with her through her life, and that her mother had told her that this strange phenomenon had also given her warning of every disaster she had experienced. The old woman, whoever she was, was always accompanied in her missions of woe by the oak tree marked as I have said. The whole thing is a mystery to us, but it is the very worst of it."

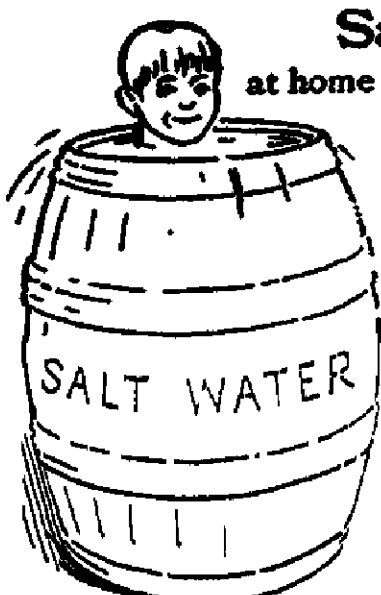

"If the thing is something supernatural, of course, as I have said, why the woman could have been a witch, but I am a plain American family, and I am not a particularly interested in why the oak tree should have come down to us in connection with the ghost. I would somehow like to think that some doughty ancestor of mine had, after the usual Irish way of the good old days, put some faithful servant to death in a way in which an oak tree took a prominent part, but I should not be surprised if he did, indeed I have a sneaking belief that that is the true explanation of the whole thing, though I am sorry that same servant is so unfortunally as to be the one on my hanging in the museum, which, if he did only with long months, would make me with proverbial rapidity."—Philadelphia Times.

Papa—Yes, he did call, and I entertained him for an hour before you came down stairs.

Salt Water Bathing—

at home or shore, for health and cleanliness, can be done perfectly with Pearline.

The Pearline in such a bath gives you luxuriant cleanliness. More, it is a decided help toward making salt water do you good. You can't get out of it that you can't get out of it with Pearline.

Soap is out of the question in salt water bathing.

You can't use soap with salt water, any way.

Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or the same as Pearline. IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, if your grocer sends you an imitation, be honest—send it back.

SNAKES IN FLORIDA.

A MAN WHO HAS CAUGHT THEM FOR TWENTY-EIGHT YEARS.

He Chases Them With a Banjo and Cures Bites With a Wood-Rattlesnake Are Easy to Tame—The King Snake Is a King Indeed—The Biggest Rattlesnake.

After a man has spent 28 years of his life catching snakes, he knows what he is talking about. St. Pomeroy is 47 years old. He went into the business of catching snakes when he was 19. He shows evidence of what the insurance men would call "an extra hazardous vocation" in the shape of 75 or more scars, the result of wounds inflicted by the fangs of reptiles. These scars are all over his body—on his legs, one on his jaw, under the eye, where a rattlesnake clipped him and hung one day, while the back of his hands look like crows' nests of scars. He is a colored man and has the appearance of having Indian blood in his veins.

"All snakes," said St., "like music, and that banjo is the thing I use to catch them with. Suppose I'm in the woods and see a rattlesnake crawl down a gopher hole. I go to the mouth of the hole and play, and pretty soon here comes the old fellow crawling forth. As soon as he gets outside I pick him up and put him in the bag. If he's in the open, coiled under a palm-leaf, I'm more cautious. About 30 feet off I sit down and play, and the snake quickly uncoils himself and rolls around over the ground as if he enjoyed it. He rattles all the time, but not as loud as he does when he means business and is giving you warning to give him more room. I gradually approach, playing softer and softer, and finally I pick him up about the middle and slip him in the bag and go looking for another."

"A rattlesnake is the most poisonous of all the snakes in Florida. His bite is sure death unless you have an antidote very handy. I've got an antidote, though, and a life never troubles me now in the least. It is so efficacious that the wound hardly swells. I went down and spent nearly two years among the Seminoles in the Everglades to get it, and then it was good luck. I was out in the woods one day with Kuchillo. The old fellow got bitten by a rattlesnake, and he started at once for his antidote. I followed him, for I knew what he was looking for. He tried to conceal the plant by crawling it down with his foot, but I picked it up and told him that was the thing to cure snake bites. He remarked that I was too much of an Indian and must stay always in the Indian camp. The plant not only cures snake bite, but the stings of all kinds of insects and it is also said to cure rabies."

Well, to get back to snakes. There are two kinds of rattlers in Florida. One is the swamp rattler and the other the highlander. The swamp snake has a larger head and a thicker body and is altogether a heavier snake than his highland brother. His coat, too, is darker and his diamonds brighter. He is more vicious and gives mighty little time for you to move when he sounds the alarm. "Rattlesnakes are very easy to tame. Let me handle them for about four days, and they know me and make no effort whatever to bite. I don't take the fangs out, for what's the use? In two weeks they grow out again big enough to kill you, and in six weeks are as big as they ever were. I have heard people say that a rattlesnake gets his poison from a plant, but it's all nonsense. It is in him. For I find those a year in captivity are just as deadly as when fresh from the woods."

"The biggest rattlesnake I ever saw I caught up here by Palatka. He was 10 feet 11 inches long, weighed 35 pounds and had 50 rattles. I had him in a pit there in the yard for a long time. A heavy rain came once and filled the pit up with water, and he drowned. I made a vest out of his skin. I'm afraid I'll never get another snake like that."

St. now far does a rattlesnake strike? "Some people say he strikes his length, and others declare that he can jump more than his length, but I've watched them closely, and I know they are wrong. A rattlesnake can't get farther than the length of two coils. That's about his limit."

Where do you find most of the rattlers? "Port George is a great place for them. Pablo is another good field, while all down the coast in the scrub there are thousands. Then in the hammocks and swamps you will find plenty, and in the pine woods where there are gopher holes. A rattlesnake likes a gopher hole. It's a nice snug place, and he lives there with the coiled whip, the gopher and the gopher snake in perfect harmony."

But the king snake, the smart snake, the snake you can tame to perform tricks, is the king snake, and he's the king and enemy of them all, and he kills all he can and eats them, too, if they are not too large. The king snake isn't afraid to tackle anything that crawls. I've seen one kill a rattlesnake almost twice as big as he was. The king snake crawls silently up to where the rattler is dozing and grabs him with his mouth by the jaws, so that the rattler can't possibly use his fangs. Then, in the twinkling of an eye, he coils himself around his enemy and tightens his coils and stretches them until you can hear the bones crack. When he leaves, the rattler is like a jelly."—Florida Times-Union.

Infant Terrible.—Tommy—Do you ever ride on the horse car without paying? Mr. Sappo—No, why? "Well, I heard mamma say she wished you had come enough to go home."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Spirited Away.—Ho—I hear that Talkins moved out of his house because it was haunted. She—Oh, I see. He left because the spirit moved him.—Indianapolis Journal.

What a Minister Says.

Trinity Station, Memphis, Mo., Ala.
Dr. R. V. Williams: Dear Sir—In the fall of last year I suffered from rheumatism in my left shoulder and elbow. I tried a great many remedies, but they all failed to afford relief. From the time I began Doctor Pierce's Little Blue Pills, I felt that I was cured. I was cured in four or five months. While the attack lasted, I suffered a great deal and could not dress or undress myself. Although I am now 70 years old, I now regard my health as splendid. I had spent a great deal of money previously, in various ways, but I am now well.

PIERCE'S CURE.

Kind of medicine, but the "Discovery" from the day I commenced until I was well, cost only four dollars. I am now well and I beg to subscribe myself, your grateful friend.

Days of Anxiety Return for Pa- rents.

Will Baby Get Through the Summer in Safety?

Many Little Lives Depend on Proper Diet.

Cholera Infantum is Most to Be Dreaded.

Lactated Food the Best Preven- tive Known.

Approaching summer casts its shadow on many a mother's heart.

Every summer safely passed is a golden milestone in baby's life.

But think of the countless little lives that in June, July and August are to swell the list of infant deaths

under five years.

How many a mother would like to hide her precious baby in her bosom until the danger is passed. But she must know that only intelligent, thoughtful care can keep the baby

well.

High temperature with improper feeding now brings dread cholera infantum, diarrhea and convulsions.

With the use of proper food, and there is nothing so absolutely good as lactated food, these dangers may be avoided.

Reports from homes all over the country, and especially from the large institutions where the great number of infants gives ample data for accurate judgment show that babies thrive best on lactated food.

The supreme importance of pure, nutritious nourishment, and the long study by many of the most prominent physicians in the country of infant disorders from mistakes in diet, led to the preparation of lactated food. Next to pure mother's milk, it is the most nourishing, strengthening, readily digested, and most palatable food that can be given a baby.

It more closely resembles mother's milk than other food known. Its base is sugar of milk, which is the base of mother's milk. With this is combined the nutritive elements of wheat, barley and oats in such proportion as best suits the needs of the rapidly growing child.

Baby must get well to keep up strength and resist disease.

When nothing is added to the frustration due to hot weather many babies refuse all other nourishment except lactated food, which they take with a decided relish.

In the preparation of lactated food

not only has absolute purity and free-

RECKLESS DRIVING.

Constant Danger from the Carelessness of Drivers of Delivery Wagons.

It is possible some of Middletown's merchants may be called upon at no distant day to settle for damages caused by the reckless driving of those who make their deliveries. Another and more serious fact is that the lives and limbs of other people are endangered by the recklessness of irresponsible boys employed by many of them.

Although no very serious accidents have thus far occurred from the cause referred to it is no fault of some of the drivers, for several collisions have occurred, one a few days ago, in which a serious accident was narrowly averted.

LIZZIE HALLIDAY'S TRIAL.

THE CASE ENDED AND IN THE JURY'S HANDS.

Expert Medical Testimony by Drs. Talcott, Allison, Mann and Others as to the Prisoner's Sanity—An Earnest Appeal for Mrs. Halliday by Her Counsel—District Attorney Hill Wants the Prisoner Exterminated—The Judge's Charge—The Jury Still Deliberating.

MONTICELLO, June 20.—When yesterday's report ended Dr. Selden H. Talcott, Superintendent of the Middletown State Hospital, was on the stand. Mrs. Halliday was an inmate of the Middletown hospital from Sept. 4th, 1891, to Feb. 2, 1892, having been transferred there from the Newburgh jail after the horse stealing incident in Newburgh. He was firmly convinced that the prisoner was insane then and is insane now.

He told just what her actions were when she was under his care, and said that she was full of delusions of persecution. She had said that Paul Halliday, her husband, ill-treated her, and that she would kill him if she ever got a chance. She is at present weak physically, this opinion being based on an examination he had made, this morning. He had studied her actions, and swore positively that she had no intelligent comprehension of her present surroundings.

On cross-examination Dr. Talcott testified that a departure from normal mental status might be exhibited by undue cunning or by an entire loss of craftiness. The insane were often as cunning as sane people, and possessed the power to plan and machinate. Lizzie Halliday showed absolute moral imbecility. He said that the prisoner's condition was the result of a long-continued disease of the brain, which he characterized as sub-acute mania, subject to periods of excitement and remission therefrom.

Mrs. Halliday was a person of a low order of intelligence, having a dull moral sense. It was his firm opinion that she would never recover mental soundness, and when she was transferred from the Middletown asylum to Auburn she was sent away as improved but not as cured. He said that cases of melancholia, paranoia and mania often feigned insanity by exaggerating their own condition.

Dr. H. E. Allison, of the Matteawan Asylum, formerly of the Auburn Asylum for Criminal Insane, followed Dr. Talcott. Mrs. Halliday had been full of hallucinations of sight and hearing, he said, when first placed under his care. Nevertheless he thought that she had absolutely recovered her normal mental state when discharged from the Matteawan institution in May, 1893.

He admitted that it would not be impossible for her to deceive a physician by feigning insanity, and that her present delicate health might be due to the confinement in the jail and not to a gradual progress of the disease. He said that the weak and rapid pulse found by his examination, yesterday, could not be simulated, nor could the lustreless and expressionless eyes as exhibited by the defendant in the court room.

The prosecuting attorney made much of the fact that his diagnosis of Mrs. Halliday's case did not agree with that of Dr. Talcott, and repeatedly brought out the fact that the Matteawan expert had discharged her as cured, while Dr. Talcott had testified that she was only improved and would never be of normal mental condition.

The defence then rested. Dr. George M. Beakes, recalled by the people, said that he had examined the defendant very closely during the time of the autopsy over the bodies, and his opinion was that she was acting a part.

The defendant was apparently overcome by the sight of the pistol and cartridges. She absolutely forgot to chase snakes and potato bugs after being confronted with the evidence of the pistol by which she had committed the crime.

Dr. William H. Woodruff, of Pine Bush, then testified that he saw Mrs. Halliday the day of the autopsy, and that she was wild and incoherent, but he did not judge her insane, but rather simulating insanity.

The last witness called by the District attorney was Dr. James Canthers, of Monticello. He had visited the prisoner in her cell, and in his opinion she was absolutely sane and acting a part when she seemed to be incoherent and otherwise unintelligible.

Special to the Daily Argus.

MONTICELLO, June 21.—The prisoner is in the same mood as on previous days, but apparently more excited.

MORE EXPERT TESTIMONY.

Dr. E. C. Mann, of New York city, sworn. Said he had had twenty three years' experience, and in his own private hospital since 1875. He described his examination at the prisoner, yesterday, and, this morning, and said she lacked many symptoms of real insanity. He believed she was shamming. Yesterday, her symptoms were like dementia; today, they indicate violent insanity. Dr. Mann was closely cross-examined by Lawyer Carpenter.

Dr. VanEtten, sworn. Some of the prisoner's acts were evidences of sanity. Her general actions indicated insanity.

At this point the testimony was closed.

LAWYER CARPENTER'S APPEAL.

Lawyer Carpenter made an earnest and powerful appeal in behalf of the prisoner and a good impression was created. He spoke one hour.

WANTS THE PRISONER EXTERMINATED.

District Attorney Hill finished at 1 o'clock. His speech detailed the history of the crime and made a desperate appeal for conviction. He believed in exterminating the prisoner as an enemy to society. He ridiculed Talcott, Goodale and Allison and praised the State's experts.

Hill made the best of a hard job. He made a point of the failure of the defense to call the jail physician.

THE JUDGE'S CHARGE.

The Judge charged the jury, giving an explanation of the law. He spoke lengthily of the insanity defense. The prosecution's experts made an examination and have given their opinion. The defense experts the same. Goodale, Talcott and Allison also gave opinions based on the prisoner's condition while in their keeping. The burden of proof of the prisoner's sanity rests on the prosecution.

The charge was very fair, favoring the prisoner slightly, and lasted half an hour. Lawyer Carpenter requested the judge to charge that failure to call the jail physician, Dr. McWilliams, should not prejudice them against the prisoner.

The jury went out at half past one, and at 1:30, being unable to agree, were marched to dinner.

HIS FOOT CRUSHED.

An O and W Fireman's sad mishap at Cook's Falls.

Fireman John Clancey, of the O. and W. Railway, met with a sad mishap at Cook's Falls, this morning. He was running on Conductor Kirby's train, No. 32, and went out on the pilot to put out the headlight, when he fell to the ground and before he could recover himself, the wheels of the pony truck passed over his right foot, crushing it badly.

Dr. Allen, of Cook's Falls, was called and gave such temporary relief as he could.

In order that the young man might reach Middletown as soon as possible, the O. and W. officials ordered that he be taken to Hancock and placed on Erie train 38, which arrives here at 10:32 a. m.

A number of firemen were at the depot with the patrol wagon, to meet No. 38 and the unfortunate man was taken to Thrall Hospital. It is thought it will only be necessary to amputate a portion of the foot.

Clancey is about twenty-five years old and his home is at New Durham.

RECKLESS USE OF FIREARMS.

A Bullet Whistles Close to the Heads of Parties Driving on the South Plank Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter D. Johnson, while driving in the southern part of the city, last evening, were startled by the report of a rifle and at the same time a bullet whistled close by them, over the horse's head. The animal was so frightened that it fell to the ground, showing that the missile must have been very close to its head. It was almost dark but Mr. Johnson said the shot came from the direction of the pond near Lookaley Hall.

The Flobert Rifle in Dangerous Hands.

This morning two boys, one of whom had a Flobert rifle, passed J. P. Koch's stable on Mill street, in front of which his horse was standing. The owner of the gun out of pure cussedness deliberately took aim at the animal and fired the ball striking the horse on the hip. It did not penetrate the skin, but raised a blister, showing that it struck with considerable force.

Flobert rifles in the hands of boys are dangerous things and the ordinance prohibiting the firing of guns and pistols within the corporation, should if it does not, apply to them.

Want the James Street Pavement Re-laid.

A petition is being circulated among property owners on James street, to-day, asking the Common Council to order the asphalt blocks on James street to be taken up, turned and relaid. The street has been torn up so much that it is uneven and the corners of the blocks have worn considerably.

A Case of Lockjaw.

Mr. Geo. W. Shepard, who conducts a garden truck farm near the Asylum, is a patient in Thrall Hospital, suffering with tetanus. He is resting easily, today.

Killed While Picking Coal.

Michael Tracey, a laborer in Hammond's tannery at Sparrowbush, while picking coal on the Erie, Tuesday evening, was struck and fatally injured by a pusher engine. He died at 11 o'clock that night.

Some Personal Notes.—A Singular Shower.—A Teacher's Sister Name.—A New Variety of "Wave."

From a special correspondent.

—Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Coleman started, yesterday, for Bethlehem, Pa., in order to be present at the graduation of their daughter, Miss Lulu Coleman, on Thursday.

—Mr. John H. Murray, of Washington, D. C., spent last Sunday at the home of his mother in this village.

—One very singular thing about the severe thunder storm that visited our village, Monday night, was that while the thunder and lightning were most terrible, the moon shone serene and unclouded.

—It is respectfully submitted to the writer of "Stray Thoughts" that one of the public school teachers injured in a railroad accident, a day or so since in Paterson, bore the significant name of Miss Birch-enough.

—Tuesday's Tribune notes that a suicidal wave passed over New York the day before. It is hard if in addition to hot waves and cold waves we are to be afflicted with "suicidal waves" also. One case mentioned is that of a man, who out his throat after less than two days of married life. How he must have hated his wife to take such a terrible revenge as that upon her. Fancy her future; always henceforth to be pointed out as the woman whose husband killed himself within forty-eight hours of his wedding day. It would almost seem to insinuate that she was not attractive. By the way, for how many rash and inconsiderate actions are not disappointed, misfit or betrayed affections responsible? Is it always, as is popularly supposed, a woman who is at the bottom of every tragedy of which one hears? Adam started that theory, and his descendants have been pretty constant in its support ever since, but is it in truth always the woman who does it? If Darby is sometimes found with his throat cut does not Joan occasionally wander to the river's brink of a dark night, and, gazing at the dimly seen waves, and thinking that she would be better beneath them, cold as they are, than in a world whose scorn she must face, lets them hide her from its censure?

—The writer has often thought admiringly of the heroine of a novel she once read—St Elmo by name if she is not mistaken—who finds at the early age of sixteen, that she has bestowed her heart upon an unworthy object. Does she in consequence give way to weak tears and lamentations or attempt to shorten her misery by means of poison, a rope or a revolver? By no means. With great presence of mind she sits down and writes an article on Buddhism. Does she occasionally suffer relapses of her malady, she seeks relief in the translation of choice bits of Sanscrit or Hebrew and her pangs are alleviated. These are certainly novel remedies for a heartache, but unfortunately not within the reach of every one, indeed to many death would be easier and far preferable, but it only shows what a woman of character can accomplish when she really tries.
